

What is the farest post office from the first established one?

The very first post office in colonial America was established in 1639 in the Boston home, which was also a tavern that sold “stronge water” of a man named Richard Fairbanks.

Ever since the number of post office keeps growing, but how far are they from the first one?

Established in 2000, Kekaha (Hawaii) is the farest post office from Boston with 8 292 thousands kilometers.

This chart shows the evolution of the farest post offices from Boston from 1639 to 2000

